Fairfax Station, VA - July 17, 2015 – eTutorWorld, the popular online tutoring hub announced the launch of a new comprehensive centre designed to train students preparing for SSAT (Secondary School Admissions Test). eTutorWorld expert tutors have previously delivered individualized and personalized online coaching for several other standardized tests like the AP, SAT, CAHSEE. Most refined and recently launched, their SSAT preparation program, will familiarize eTutorWorld students with the test format, expected content and time constraints. In-house experts use techniques that create required standard of competence in the students. These online hub specialists identify subject weaknesses, to help their students work on them and fine tune strengths through regular practice worksheets. The tutors diagnose, develop and scale students' learning abilities during and after each session. Every session covers latest questions and assessment trends, which encourage a child's computing and vocabulary skills. Mock Full Length tests instill the much required confidence that students finally need during the Test.

Technology-driven education has made eTutorWorld students globally competitive. Parents show increased use of the online space and collaborate with our online tutors and counsellors to assist the student in achieving higher performance levels and to tackle issues specific to their child," said Kathleen Currence, Education Advisor at eTutorWorld.

The SSAT test unlike other examinations does not stamp students with good or bad grades. Instead it truthfully measures student's quantitative, analytical, writing and reading skills. eTutorWorld is counted among the few educational enterprises around the world where the focus is on helping individual students expand their skill sets and become more competent and competitive. SSAT is just one of the many eTutorWorld's growth initiatives that help students get to good schools.
