- Licensure and Credentialing: The Act 2024 requires healthcare professionals who practice medicine through telehealth to be licensed in the state in which they are practicing. Healthcare professionals must also be credentialed by the appropriate telehealth platform.
- Patient Safety: The Act 2024 establishes a number of patient safety requirements for telehealth services. These requirements include:
 - Telehealth services must be provided by a healthcare professional who is licensed in the state in which the patient is located.
 - Telehealth services must be provided using a secure video platform.
 - The healthcare professional must be able to see and hear the patient clearly.
 - The healthcare professional must be able to assess the patient's condition and make a diagnosis.
 - The healthcare professional must be able to provide appropriate treatment and follow-up care.
- Telehealth Oversight Commission: The Act 2024 creates a new federal oversight body for telehealth, the Telehealth Oversight Commission. The Commission will be responsible for overseeing the implementation of the Act and ensuring that healthcare professionals are complying with the law.

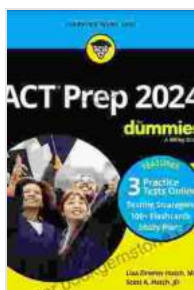

The Act 2024 is expected to have a significant impact on the way healthcare is delivered in the United States. The Act will make it easier for patients to access healthcare services, regardless of their location. The Act will also help to improve the quality of telehealth services and ensure that patients are receiving safe and effective care.

The Act 2024 is a major step forward in the development of telehealth. The Act will help to ensure that telehealth is a safe and effective way to deliver healthcare services.
