The Application Process

To apply for naturalization, you must file Form N-400, Application for Naturalization, with the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). The form can be downloaded from the USCIS website or obtained from a USCIS office.

Once you have completed the form, you must mail it to the USCIS address listed on the form. You must also include a filing fee of $640.00.

After you have filed your application, USCIS will schedule you for an interview. The interview will be held at a USCIS office near your home.

The Interview Format

The naturalization interview typically lasts for about 30 minutes. The interview will be conducted by a USCIS officer who will ask you questions about your application and your knowledge of U.S. history, government, and civics.

The interview will be divided into two parts:

1. The first part of the interview will focus on your personal information and your eligibility for naturalization.
2. The second part of the interview will focus on your knowledge of U.S. history, government, and civics.

Types of Questions

The USCIS officer will ask you a variety of questions during the interview. Some of the most common questions include:

- What is your full name?
- What is your date of birth?
- What is your place of birth?
- What is your current address?
- How long have you lived in the United States?
- Are you married? If so, what is your spouse's name?
- Do you have any children? If so, what are their names and ages?
- What is your occupation?
- What is your income?
- Have you ever been arrested or convicted of a crime?

- Have you ever been a member of the Communist Party or any other totalitarian organization?
- Do you believe in the principles of the U.S. Constitution?
- What are the three branches of the U.S. government?
- Who is the current President of the United States?
- What are the five freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment?

The USCIS officer may also ask you to read a passage from the U.S. Constitution or to answer a civics question. For example, the officer may ask you to explain the Bill of Rights or to describe the process for amending the Constitution.
